Reg & Paula: Another Day in Paradis

I just got back from the meeting at Reg & Paula's. What a wonderful house with great views across the Truckee Meadows. We had a really great group of mostly, but not entirely, new folks. A few names that pop to mind are Greg, Rick and Allison, and Ryan. Ryan, along with longtime Reno brewer Sean Crawford, brought a keg of sweet stout and a box of homebrew that fueled the tastebuds and some interesting conversations; all were quite tasty. Reg had smoked up some trout and pork that everybody enjoyed. Ron Gregory snuck in an IPA and some commercial cider (hey, where was Linda?). Reg also had a really nice homebrew that was somewhere between a brown ale and an English mild, although stronger and with a really nice hop flavor. Thankfully, other Nature slipped in a beautiful night that surprised us all after the windy winter preview of the previous night. All in all, it was a great WZZ meeting with lots of new faces that we look forward to seeing again!

the less-than-rough cabin accommodations this year, a great treat for us with our two young daughters on hand.

The event was as wonderful as expected. The WZZ club made sure that late night libations occurred as scheduled. Despite concerns that a bear had found its way into our cabin on Saturday night, I assure everyone that the grunts, grumbles, and thumps were not the activities of our furry, ursid friends. And it is true: the surface treatments of the cabin bathrooms are not as smooth as one would like when happening to lose their footing in the dark after a casual evening out with fortified libations. Good thing we were parked for the night!

This Month

Dudley Dude Ranch

With only two months to put this newsletter together, and no shortage of notice on when it should go out, it appears that I still managed to botch my deadline! Of course, we all marked the date when it was originally published back in August, so no worries, right? (Sorry Dave, but I really will be there this year. So if it is only you and me, we will make it one heluva good club meeting!)

Everyone, bring yourselves out to the off-grid domicile of Dave and Julie, even if you do only have 2 hours notice. I will see everyone there!

Last Month (NCHF)

Dobbins, here we are!

October brought a goodly number of WZZ'rs to Dobbins, CA for the Northern California Homebrew Festival. In fact, the WZZ turnout was really quite tremendous with a number of new members discovering the joy of the NCHF event.
